

A-Level Languages

Why French/German/Spanish?

Languages are subjects with a high level of academic rigour which differentiate students significantly from their peers in the eyes of universities and prospective employers alike. They are an ideal choice for those interested not only in the intricacies of a language, but in the culture and customs of the people/s who speak it.

What can I expect?

Building on success at GCSE in the skills of Listening/Speaking/Reading/Writing/Grammar, the A Level course provides a more in-depth appreciation of the aspects of society which shape the nation, whilst also studying a film and a work of literature as a backdrop. In addition, students are encouraged to do a Work Experience abroad.

What do I need?

A 5 at GCSE; a fascination with (and the drive to master!) the finer points of grammar; a genuine interest in global communities; and the desire to communicate at a higher level in the language.

What about the future?

Languages can be studied on their own at university
